Library Strategic Plan
2006-2008
Mission statement

“To provide high quality library and information services in support of the teaching, learning and research objectives of the university by developing a library for the early 21st century through its own collections and through access to worldwide resources in both print and electronic formats.”
What are “ePrints”?

- Pre and post print research papers made available online by their authors.

- They may be journal articles, conference papers, book chapters, theses, technical reports or any other form of research output.
The Server

- Dell powerEdge 2850

Setup of Server

- RedHat Enterprise Release 4
- Apache
- MySQL
- Perl (DBI modules)
The software

Eprints software was developed at the University of Southampton by Stevan Harnad and Christopher Gutteridge.

Version 2.3.13.1.

Designed for maintaining OAI compliant ePrint archives.
The role of the Library

- Advocacy
- Encouraging
- Advising
- Converting material (pdf, txt, ??)
- Depositing material
- Quality control
Copyright

- Journal policies

- Needs to be handled on a case-by-case basis

- Preprints not a problem as author owns copyright

- Most publishers are now seeing “ePrints” as an electronic resource

What the colours mean

This service is maintained by SHERPA, with support from JISC and the Wellcome Trust. It is a development of the original journal publishers' listings produced by the RoMEO Project. Journal information is kindly provided by the British Library's Zetoc service hosted by VIMAS. The information held here is available for use by third-parties under conditions for re-use and a Creative Commons license. See a list of sites that are already using RoMEO data. A prototype API is available and being developed for m2m access; for example to be integrated into a repository's deposit process. Statistics are available for RoMEO colours allocated to the publishers in this list. Contact us for further information.

Publisher information is updated by our collaborative colleagues and through community contributions - please submit any updates using the link provided on the search results pages. If a publisher is not listed here you may wish to recommend that we include it. Please note that these listings refer to journal publications and not to book publications. Consult the publishing contract, or contact publishers directly for their self-archiving policies for book chapters.

Please note that general use of the terms pre-print and post-print can vary; these lists follow accepted definitions for self-archiving purposes. These listings are primarily for the use of the academic research community and any information given is from this perspective.

All information is correct to the best of our knowledge but should not be relied upon for legal advice.

So what do the colours mean?

Definitions and Terms

RoMEO colours

We have used different colours to help highlight publisher's archiving policies. These colours are a development from the original RoMEO project list, and differentiate between four categories of archiving rights:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ROMEO colour</th>
<th>Archiving policy</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>green</td>
<td>can archive pre-print and post-print</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>blue</td>
<td>can archive post-print (ie final draft post-refereeing)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>yellow</td>
<td>can archive pre-print (ie pre-refereeing)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>white</td>
<td>archiving not formally supported</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Each publisher's entry is coded according to one of these colour categories.

The entry for each publisher also lists conditions or restrictions imposed by the publisher which govern archiving rights or activities. Conditions are taken as terms which can be easily accommodated and which do not hinder an author in archiving their work. A typical condition is to acknowledge the publisher's copyright in the work. Restrictions are more prohibitive, typically requiring some additional action on behalf of the author. Where a Restriction effectively blocks access to the print, such as in the case of an embargo on its public release, or requiring password-controlled access, then the partial archiving right is noted but the full colour categorisation does not apply.

Sometimes open access discussions talk about "gold" publishers. This is a later development independent of RoMEO categories, and is used to describe publishers of open access journals. For the purposes of archiving, all open access journals allow archiving and can be taken as RoMEO "green".

Some of the larger publishers have different archiving rights for different journals. This is particularly the case where they publish learned society journals on behalf of the society. A learned society might insist on a more liberal or more restrictive archiving policy than the general publisher's copyright agreement allows. The RoMEO colour coding relates to the overall permissions given by a publisher. For example, a publisher has to apply the "green" archiving rights across all of their journals for their code to be "green".

About the Archive

NUI Maynooth ePrints and eTheses Archive

About the Archive

An ePrint is an electronic copy of an academic paper. ePrints can be either preprints (a working paper or the version of a paper submitted for peer review) or postprints (the final peer reviewed version, which has been accepted for publishing) or similar material such as book chapters, conference papers, working papers, technical reports and so on.

NUI Maynooth ePrints Archive is an institutional repository of ePrints which showcases the research output of NUI Maynooth and St. Patrick’s College staff and postgraduate students. This open access ensures the widest possible dissemination and impact for our work in Maynooth and contributes to the growing body of research literature that is now freely available online.

This archive was set up by the Library with the assistance of the Computer Centre.

Browsing

Browsing is a good way to access documents if you don’t have a specific idea of what you’re looking for. There are three ways to browse the archive, by subject, year or academic department.

To browse the archive either select Browse from the front page or from the navigation bar at the top of the screen. Then choose which property you wish to browse by eg. “subject”.

You will be presented with a list of possible values, select one of these, and you will be given a list of references to documents in the archive (if any) which match this value. To access a paper, simply click on its reference in the display.

On the abstract page, you should be able to see what subjects are pertinent to the current document. Clicking on one of those subjects will take you back to the relevant browse by subject view.

Searching

The archive offers two levels of searching: simple and advanced. They are similar, but the advanced form lets you perform a finer-grained search using more fields. Access the simple search form by clicking on the Browse button from the front page or from the navigation bar at the top of the screen. This will take you to the simple search form.

To perform an advanced search, click on the Advanced search button from the front page or from the navigation bar at the top of the screen. This will take you to the advanced search form.

The Religious Context of Early Christianity. A Guide to Graeco-Roman Religions,

Abstract

This book (an English translation of Die religiöse Umwelt des Urchristentums [2 vols, Stuttgart 1995-1996]) presents a survey of Graeco-Roman religions aimed at theology students seeking to understand the pagan religious background to the emergence of the Church. Judaism is explicitly excluded because its relationship with Christianity was quite different (because much closer).

This book (an English translation of Die religiöse Umwelt des Urchristentums [2 vols, Stuttgart 1995-1996]) presents a survey of Graeco-Roman religions aimed at theology students seeking to understand the pagan religious background to the emergence of the Church. Judaism is explicitly excluded because its relationship with Christianity was ‘quite different (because much closer)” (p. xiii). The material is organised into six chapters: civic and domestic religion; mystery cults; a rather broad category termed ‘popular belief’ that

Carpenter, John (1729-86)

Abstract

Carpenter, John (1729-86), also known asSean Mac an Iasg or Macaflla, archbishop of Dublin, was born in Dublin, the son of a merchant tailor. He received his early schooling in Dublin and, between 1744 and 1747, was associated with the Gaelic language and cultural circle which had formed around Tadgh Ó Neachtain, scion of a Connacht bardic family who had settled in Dublin. It was probably under Ó Neachtain's influence that he compiled an Irish grammar, a miscellany of prose and poetry and a book of devotions for his personal use which included part of the Inisiteach Christi in Uster Irish. In 1747 he sailed to Lisbon, entered the Irish College there and was ordained priest in 1752. He took a doctorate in theology before returning to Dublin in 1754.
